Q: Openshift/Kubernetes Certificate Signing Request I'm new to Kubernetes (or rather OpenShift), so this is probably a super basic question. I'm following the OSS-native Certificate provisioning guide (I'm not keen on setting up a private key, rekeying certificates every time I redeploy a service, etc). I've generated a CSR and I've packaged it into a JAR. Do I need to do anything to make this JAR available to the cluster (i.e. upload it somewhere or do I just run pk12util in the same directory the generated CSR is in?) Do I need to wait for some certificate authority to accept the CSR and issue a certificate? A: No need to upload anything, just pk12util -p jason -i /my/csr.pk12 -o /my/certificate.pem will generate the certificate. Make sure the private key is kept secret! { stdenv, fetchpatch, fetchFromGitHub, fetchgit, makeWrapper, python3 , qmake , qttools, bluedevil, bluedevil-plugins, bluez-utils, libnotify, xdg-utils }: let git = fetchgit { name = "x11-apps"; repo = "git://github.com/eridius/x11-apps.git"; rev = "b745119f924a2b7940e01fcb6a4e5f4e55a5b2f6"; url = ""; }; patch = stdenv.lib.concatStringsSep " " stdenv.lib.optionalString versionsToPatch; in stdenv.mkDerivation rec { version = "1.3.0"; pname = "xfce4-whiskermenu"; src = fetchgit { name = "xfce4-whiskermenu"; url = "
