Q: django 1.10.2 submit forms outside of Django admin forms I'm trying to display some forms that run some business logic. It works fine inside of the Django admin area, but not outside. I'm not very familiar with Django/Python/server side stuff so my question here is elementary. I have these forms outside of the admin area. If I submit it, the "Results" don't return. The views that are supposed to return the results (looked similar to others on stackoverflow) are in this order: from django.shortcuts import render from concurrency.models import Task from concurrency.models import TaskExport from django.core.urlresolvers import reverse from datetime import datetime from netmiko.commands.netmiko_ssh import NetMiko def Export_tasks(request): if request.method == "GET": return render(request, 'app/index.html') for index, task in enumerate(Task.objects.all()): if index == 0: continue Export = TaskExport() with open('path/to/save-file.txt', 'a') as f: Export.save(task.id, task.task.user.id) print task.task.id f.write(str(task.task.id) + ' ') print task.id f.

The effect of cold storing blood for transfusion was examined. It was found that over one month of storage at 4 degrees C, blood developed up to 40 per cent more phagocytic activity than at room temperature. It was concluded that the previous eight hour storage period at room temperature does not provide an adequate delay to allow phagocytosis to develop in cold stored erythrocytes. Therefore, where a delay is required to allow phagocytosis to develop in the erythrocyte, storage beyond the eight hour room temperature storage period should be avoided.Neuronal and inducible nitric oxide synthase modulate invasive potential of human glioma cells: an in vitro study.
