See: You can try something like: `ftp -e "ls -l -a -f -i -m %D | grep -i -v -e "\.~$"` > files_to_upload To see if there are any files that you don't want overwritten, and don't want FTP to delete them.

The 24th patch for the Grand Theft Auto V has caused quite a stir, with many players being left stranded in the game's opening hours because their game stopped working after downloading the patch. Today, however, Rockstar has issued a statement clarifying just what happened and, according to its statement, an error with the game's online features caused the issue. "Due to a technical error, we had a small number of players unable to access 'online features' of Grand Theft Auto V on PC," the company said in a statement. "We've since identified the issue and are working to resolve it as a priority." It's not clear exactly what that error is or what "online features" refers to, but the statement goes on to say that the majority of players will still be able to use the game's core gameplay -- just not "a few." As for the people who were affected, Rockstar says that all players will be able to access the game again once the problem is fixed and will be given the opportunity to download a refund. The statement continues, "We know that a few users are experiencing technical difficulties playing Grand Theft Auto V on PC and we are working to address them as a priority. We sincerely apologize for the inconvenience this may have caused."

"Grand Theft Auto V" was originally released on PS3 and Xbox 360 in 2013 and on Windows PC last year. An update, "Los Santos & Blaine County," was also released this week. Ferrari,
